CALIFORNIA

From San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—The engineer of the steamer [illegible] after the [illegible] which disabled her [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] and then put back the steam [illegible] full that it would [illegible] sufficient pressure to get the vessel under headway once more and brought her back to San Francisco. They did not see the [illegible] which had also become disabled in the storm until just as they entered the Golden Gate. The [illegible] has not yet returned, having evidently missed the [illegible] entirely. The latter drifted as far south as Santa Cruz before she could get under way for San Francisco again. The damage will be repaired to-day and she will probably go to sea again to-morrow.

Mrs. Harriet [illegible], who was shot by James Wilkinson Tuesday night, is not expected to recover. Wilkinson is reported as insane or shamming it.

A meeting is to be held at the Mayor's office at 11 A. M. to arrange for raising funds for the relief of Lone Pine sufferers.

Weather warm—no wind—night very sultry.

Stocks very firm on the street. Before the Board there are indications of a still further advance. The following assessments have been levied: Jackson 25, Mahogany 150 and Daney 10 per share.

The [illegible] from Panama is not yet telegraphed, though a little overdue. She is expected here at the latest by to-morrow morning.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES

SHASTA, April 4.—At about 3 o'clock yesterday morning the main building of the Shasta County Hospital caught fire and burned down in less than twenty minutes. All the patients escaped uninjured by the energetic efforts of the steward, cook and such of the patients as were able to assist. Nearly all the furniture, bedding, cooking utensils and medicines, were saved. The fire was first discovered upon the roof and no doubt caught from the outside by a spark from a stovepipe.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY

OLYMPIA, W. T., April 4.—Grading on Ballett's contract, the N. P. R. R., is progressing favorably, four miles having been already completed.

Mr. L. F. Loveridge has withdrawn from the editorship of the Courier on political grounds.

The steamer Alida is now running daily between here and Seattle.

Political Facts and Signs

SENATOR SUMNER'S POSITION—MESSRS. DAWES AND GARFIELD.

A Washington telegram, March 18, to the Boston Advertiser gives the [illegible]

The report that Senator Sumner was to preside at the Cincinnati Convention and the dispatch from that city that Senator Tipton claims Representatives Dawes and Garfield as secret sympathizers with the anti-Grant movement have made this a lively day in political circles. The truth about Mr. Sumner's position is that while he has not formally consented to preside at Cincinnati he has been formally asked, the supporters of the movement desire to secure his active and avowed co-operation and give out that they expect him to preside. Mr. Sumner declines to say what he will do [illegible] what he will not do—a refusal from which they claim encouragement that he will ultimately accept their leadership. Col. John W. Forney is in town and last evening he had a long interview with Mr. Sumner upon the political situation. The Senator stated distinctly that he does not now approve of Judge Davis' nomination, nor regard him the strongest leader for the opposition. He declined to say that he should not go to Cincinnati, but said he is preparing another and a final effort against the present administration, which he will deliver at the first proper opportunity. Concerning the position and future action of Messrs. Dawes and Garfield there is however no excuse for doubt, nor for Senator Tipton's statement that they are secret sympathizers with the anti-Grant movement, nor has either ever given it encouragement. Mr. Dawes says distinctly that he has no sympathy with the Cincinnati movement, nor with the unwise course of our friends in the Senate towards its promoters, without which it would have nothing to sustain it, and General Garfield is known to hold an equally positive opinion. He stated yesterday that his duties in Congress would prevent him from attending the Cincinnati Convention, as it prevented him from attending the convention of his own State, but that he had no fear [illegible] be reckoned with the third party men. General Garfield will work for reform, but within the party. Senator Tipton could hardly have selected two representatives whose support he could not with more justice have claimed.

The Political Situation

[From the New York Herald.]

The pending political campaign in which Grant is again the leader with the old copperhead element again in the field against him is only history repeating itself, except that ink now flows instead of blood, and ballots do the work of bullets. And victory after victory lights upon the Union banner, the rebels meekly offer thanks for blessings in disguise. New Hampshire is lost to them, and they rejoice; Connecticut will follow, and their heart will be glad with song. General Grant will have many of these blessings to bestow upon them before they get out of the wilderness of their political complications and witness his reoccupation of the White House. It now appears probable that every State in the Union, except perhaps New York, will enroll itself on the side of the administration in the November election, and no future political event can ever be more certain than is the success of General Grant. The petty issues of the opposition fail to take hold of the public mind; and while the people might have rallied to the war cry of a protectorate for Mexico in the cause of civilization and humanity, they are nothing for a protectorate for the interests of a faction in the Federal offices or for the sale of a few thousand second hand muskets at a good price to French contractors.

Are the American people to disown and overthrow the great soldier [illegible] gave our armies victory [illegible] whose [illegible] has [illegible] [illegible] and managed all [illegible] are the millions of [illegible] low [illegible] Grant's [illegible] brave Southerners who [illegible] [illegible] only to find magnanimity and kindness [illegible] are the citizens of the [illegible] in whose history the name of Grant must live for ages to sent [illegible] abandon him because Mr. Sumner is angry, and Mr. Greeley is dissatisfied, and Mr. Trumbull [illegible] and to [illegible] and who [illegible] from the [illegible] appoint [illegible]

Pius IX, it is reported, accuses the Italian statesmen of self delusion, and says they have done wrong to come to Rome to vex an old man. The culture of rice is now attracting the attention of the agriculturists of California, in which State 300,000,000 pounds of rice, imported from Asiatic countries, are consumed every year, the average price being seven cents per pound. The whole family are Protestants and no evidence has appeared that any of them ever had the most remote connection with Fenianism.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

Even the Washington correspondent of the Springfield Republican says all are agreed that General Porter's defense of General Grant was perfect. Nobody can doubt after his testimony that the President is innocent of any knowledge of the existence of a corrupt ring in the Custom House.

Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, the other day took a vote by primaries for the election of delegates to the National Republican Convention. There was a Grant ticket and a Greeley ticket, and the Lancaster Enquirer says the Grant ticket received 4,6[illegible]3 votes to 415 for the Greeley ticket. Lancaster is one of the oldest and strongest Republican counties in the United States.

Two hundred and thirty thousand immigrants from various parts of Europe arrived at the port of New York during last year. Of these Germany furnishes 58,601. If however Great Britain is treated as one nation, which she is just as much as Germany, her delegation is the largest, thus: England [illegible] Ireland [illegible] Scotland 10,1[illegible] Wales 1,225, making an aggregate of 11[illegible] 625. Sweden follows with 10,000, while Norway sends only 2,700. France contributes 4,000, Denmark, Switzerland and Italy about 2,000 each, and so on down until it reaches Greece, whose genial skies were abandoned by only seven of her sons and daughters for the sterner climate of America.

An Effective Reply

The Chicago Tribune is one of those newspapers which are so anxious to show their "independence" that they depart from the right simply because the administration is right, and it will never do for them to agree with the administration. To make a show of independence they do not hesitate to place themselves in the wrong. The Tribune, opposing the renomination of Grant, asks:

Is it wise to persist in a policy which can have no other effect than to divide the Republican party, and have no other effect than to provoke the nomination of other Republican candidates? To this the St. Paul Press thus pointedly responds:

That is to say, being translated, is it wise for the Republican party to persist in its determination to nominate for President the man who is the almost unanimous choice of the party, in face of the opposition of two or three newspapers and three Republican Senators, and thus provoke them to nominate another Republican candidate? Is it wise for over three millions of Republican voters to reject the dictation of three or four malcontents and thus provoke them to make asses of themselves? We think it is wise for the Republican party to give up its deliberate and almost unanimous choice for President, and let Horace White of the Chicago Tribune and Gratz Brown [illegible] dictate its nominations, rather than provoke these [illegible] to some new freak of insanity.

Valuable Souvenir

A SKETCH OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN WRITTEN BY HIMSELF.

[From the Bloomington (Ill.) Pantagraph]

An interesting and valuable manuscript of President Lincoln is in the possession of Jesse W. Fell of Normal. The circumstances under which it was written were these: It was suggested to Lincoln in the latter part of 1859 by Fell and others that he might become an available Republican candidate for the Presidency in 1860, but it was a long time before Lincoln would believe that he could come prominently before the convention, inasmuch as Seward, Cameron, Banks and others who had been prominent party leaders were mentioned in connection with the office. Fell wished to present Lincoln's name in Pennsylvania in the event of Cameron's withdrawal, and requested Lincoln to write a brief sketch of who he was, so that an accurate statement of his points as a candidate might be placed before the people of that State. It was not till after repeated solicitations that Lincoln responded to the request, and when he did in December, 1860, he sent to Fell the manuscript referred to, which is a brief statement of his ancestry and his early life, and a characteristic description of his personal appearance.

Fell sent the document to Joseph J. Lewis of Pennsylvania, late Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who from it prepared a sketch of his life and services, and his strong points as a candidate for President. The article thus appeared in the North American of Philadelphia in January, 1860, and was the most accurate and comprehensive paper on the subject that appeared. It was immediately copied into all the leading papers of Pennsylvania and other Eastern States; and indeed the Illinois press either copied it or obtained their leading facts and arguments from it. The manuscript has been in Lewis' possession until recently, when he returned it to Fell. Of course it was never imagined by the writer that the paper would ever either be published or seen by any person except Fell. It was evidently written in off hand, as it has frequent interlineations and erasures. The language therefore, is his own natural expressions such as he would use to a friend in private conversation. For instance, he says his parents "were both born in Virginia of undistinguished families—second families perhaps I should say." Further on he says that his father moved to what is now called Spencer county, Indiana, in Lincoln's eighth year, where he grew up. "There were some schools, so called, but no qualification was ever required of a teacher beyond readin' and writin' and cipherin' to the rule of three. If a straggler, supposed to understand Latin, happened to sojourn in the neighborhood, he was looked upon as a wizard."

He goes on to say that he was raised to farm work, which he continued until he was twenty two. His last year in Illinois he spent in Macon county, then he was at New Salem (now Menard county) "as a sort of clerk in a store." He then refers to the Black Hawk war and to his election to the Legislature and to Congress, winding up with the following sentence: "If any personal description of me is thought desirable, it may be said I am in hight six feet four inches, nearly, lean in flesh, weighing, on an average 180 pounds, dark complexion, with coarse, black hair and gray eyes, no other marks or brands recollected."

The manuscript has been neatly framed, and for a day or two past has been on exhibition. It is one of the most valuable souvenirs of Lincoln in existence and the only thing of the kind he ever wrote.

Limits of Revelation.

Many people say "Why does not the Bible settle a great many points which are perplexing to men?" They have an idea that a book which is inspired of God is to be a guide for the settlement of any moral questions that may arise in the lives of men, so that they shall not have the trouble of making inquiries on any subject which concerns their higher interests. And they do not believe that it has a different meaning under different circumstances. But do you suppose that God would have given us a book that undertook to go into the whole genius of creation? The world was not made for any such purpose. You might as well say, "Why did not God make a garden behind every man's house, where all desirable plants should come up of their own accord, where everything is in perfect order, without giving the owner any trouble?" It might as well be asked, "Why is not fruit provided with wings like birds, so that they might fly in through the window and set itself right down upon people's lips?" It would be just as reasonable to say. What was the use of making things so that we should have to work in order to get them? God meant that man should be forever building himself by thought, by feeling, by evolution, adapting himself to circumstances, sharpening this faculty, lifting up and pulling down. It was the divine intention that by an active process of education we should be developed from a lower to a higher state of being. Therefore it is that if a man would be a sculptor, or a painter, or a scholar, he must become such by working out the things which belong to the particular profession which he has chosen. We are working out ourselves, and everybody knows, who has given the subject any thought, that the strongest men and the best men are they who, being put into this life, have wrought out patience and endurance and energy by the necessity which has been laid upon them to do or to die. Now, in a world which is made to kill lazy folks and to build up industrious people, in a world which has been made like a vast grind-stone on which to polish and sharpen men by attritions, do you suppose that God, in giving us the Bible, has given us a book that settles everything? Instead of being such a book, it is one which stirs men up and requires them to form judgments of their own. I would not thank anybody who should bring into my house a book that settled all questions of casuistry, and all questions of morals, so that no child who took it into his hands should have to ask any questions. I would sooner thank a man for giving my children such wealth and luxury and pleasure and honor as should cut off every motive which was calculated to wake them up to acquire by their own exertions these amenities of life. That is not the creative design. It is not the divine method. The Bible answers precisely to the analogy of the world into which we are born. It is a book which contains a given amount of instruction and stimulation, but which does not take away from us the necessity of making an effort to find out for ourselves those things which are most vital to our welfare both here and hereafter. And it is an obligation which rests upon every man to take his one talent, his two talents or his five talents, as the case may be, and go out and make them more.—H. W. Beecher.

The Presbyterians of Ireland are moving in earnest opposition to the demand of the Roman Catholic prelates for separate denominational schools. The present educational system of Ireland, which was in great part the device of Archbishop Whately, provides for the union of literary and moral instruction and the separate inculcation of religious truth. This system the prelates are determined to overthrow, and it is the system which the Presbyterians are leagued to defend.

Time and again we have for years been reading the statement that the whole number of land-owners in England and Wales is but 30,000. John Bright is credited with originating this statement. Earl Derby now makes vigorous denial of it and says there are 300,000 land-owners in England.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE

The endowment fund of Cornell College, Iowa, has now reached about $9[illegible],000. The annual attendance of students is nearly 350.

During a late revival in Vincentown, Ohio, about fifty drunkards were reclaimed from drunkenness, about thirty of whom joined the church.

The next General Conference of the M. E. Church will be held in the Academy of Music at Brooklyn, the accommodations of which are far superior to those of any of the churches.

Rev. D. W. Thomas, of the Methodist Mission in India, has presented to that conference the noble sum of $20,000 for the purpose of founding at Bareilly a Theological and Normal Seminary.

On the 15th of March an important meeting of clergymen and laymen of the English Church was held at St. James Hall, London, to consider the necessity of reform in the Church of England.

The statistics of the St. Louis Conference, M. E. Church, show a net increase during the year of 1,833 members, 44 local preachers, and 11 churches. In Sunday school statistics and benevolent contributions there was a slight falling off.

American Epigrams

GOOD AND CHARACTERISTIC UTTERANCES OF GREAT AMERICANS.

Franklin said many things that have passed into maxims, but nothing that is better known and remembered than, "He paid dear, very dear, for his whistle."

Washington made but very few epigrammatic speeches. Here is one: "To be prepared for war is the most effectual means of preserving peace."

Did you ever hear old John Dickinson? Well, he wrote of American history in 1768: "By uniting we stand, by dividing we fall."

Patrick Henry, as every school boy knows, gave us, "Give me liberty or give me death," and "If this be treason, make the most of it."

Thomas Paine had many quotable epigrammatic sentences. Rose like a rocket, fell like a stick. "Times that try men's souls," "One step from the sublime to the ridiculous," etc.

Jefferson's writings are so besprinkled that it is difficult to select. In despair we jump at "Few die and none resign," certainly as applicable now to [illegible] as in Jefferson's time.

Henry Lee gave Washington his immortal title, "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Charles Cotesworth Pinckney declared in favor of "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute."

"Peaceably if we can, forcibly if we must," is from Josiah Quincy, 1811.

John Adams did not say, "Live or die, survive or perish, I'm for the Constitution," but Daniel Webster said it for him.

The revolutionary age alone would fill our article, had we time to gather the pearls. Coming down, we pass [illegible], but not more famous men.

Davy Crockett was the illustrious author of "Be sure you are right, then go ahead."

Andrew Jackson gave us "The Union—it must be preserved."

Benton almost lost his original identity in "Old Bullion," from his hard money doctrines.

Scott's "Hasty plate of soup" lasted his lifetime.

Taylor's battle order, "A little more grape, Capt. Bragg," will be quoted after he is forgotten by "all the world and the rest of mankind."

Seward is known for the "irrepressible conflict," wherever the English language is spoken.

Rufus Choate gives us "glittering generalities."

Tom Corwin's "Welcome with bloody hands to hospitable graves" gave him more unenviable criticism than any other saying of his life.

Calhoun gave us "State rights" as a most pernicious and absurd equivalent for national supremacy under the Constitution.

Stringfellow was the original "Border Ruffian."

Douglas applied a "squatter sovereign," though it is probable that Cass invented it and Calhoun named it.

War times gave us no end of epigrammatic utterances. Those of Lincoln alone would fill a volume—chiefest of all these that noble, God like sentiment, "With charity for all and malice toward none."

McClellan's chief exploit was to make us acquainted with the phrase, "Change of base."

Grant gave "fight it out on this line," "Unconditional surrender," "I propose to move immediately upon your works," "Bottled," and a hundred others. It seems to have escaped notice that Grant is responsible for more of th[illegible] characterizing elementary crystallizations of thought than any military leader of modern times.

Sherman once gave utterance to the great truth, showing at once statesmanship and military sagacity: "The Confederacy is a shell," and he had the felicity of practically demonstrating his own theorem by the "March to the Sea."

Sheridan's character and his style of fighting are best expressed by "Sent them whirling up the valley."

Pope's unfortunate orders from "Headquarters in the saddle" gave General Lee opportunity for the solitary joke of his lifetime. "What can you expect of a General who puts his headquarters where his hindquarters ought to be?"

Butler, more incisive with the pen than with the sword, cut through one of the knottiest problems of the war with the name "Contraband."

FRIDAY MORNING APR [illegible]

The German Government and the French Arms Investigation

[illegible] the Senate [illegible] ed in [illegible] of Govern [illegible] will an [illegible] that [illegible] was [illegible] present [illegible] such a purpose even Mr Sumner did not hesitate to institute an inquiry implicating his Government in the wrong with a foreign Government that had made no complaint The failure of the effort is apparent We speak of it once more in order to call attention to a very striking and conclusive article on the subject by the North German Gazette of Berlin an organ of the Imperial Government of Germany We have been told that the result of this inquiry in the United States Senate has been to alienate German Americans from the Republican party Now let us hear the paper above named on the merits of the question It says

When the fact of these sales of arms during the war was brought to the notice of our Department of Foreign Affairs a thorough investigation of the subject took place and our Government arrived at the conclusion that it would not be justified in complaining of the course pursued by the authorities of the United States in reference to this affair Irregularities such as were alluded to during the recent debate in the American Senate have undoubtedly occurred but they were certainly not important enough to be regarded as violations of international courtesy much less of flagrant breaches of neutrality No complaints were addressed in consequence by our Government to the Cabinet of Washington at the time when the transaction took place and none will be made now especially as the Government of President Grant has uniformly conducted itself toward this country in a manner so friendly and upright that the relations of the two Governments have been and are now, of the most cordial nature

There are two other points which should not be overlooked in forming an opinion upon the question brought up by Senator Sumner That gentleman during the war, took sides with France and delivered elaborate addresses, full of very hostile sentiments toward this Government His present course we have no reason to believe to be dictated by friendlier feelings toward Germany

'Mr Sumner, is, moreover, a decided enemy of the present administration of the United States On account of his unfriendliness toward President Grant he had to be deprived of the influential position of Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs, and his present movement is again intended to prejudice the American people against the President The Presidential election takes place next fall in the United States, and everything is brought forward to prevent the continuance of President Grant in his present position

A French agent, the Marquis de Chambrun, seems to be mixed up with this affair It is but natural that the French people and their Government should be enraged at the unexampled venality and rapacity of their agents during the war Consul Victor Place who had his dishonest hands likewise in this American business was but a type of the French scoundrels who made money out of the terrible distress of their country

What more could be wanted than this authoritative vindication of our Government? Germany says she has no cause of complaint Is it for American Senators to invent one? Viewed in the light afforded by this article from the German official paper, how utterly unworthy does this political trick, started with a view of influencing an election appear'

Freights and Fares—Further Comparisons

In a former article we gave some statements relative to railroad freights and fares drawn from a report by a Committee of the California Legislature We have now a report of the Board of Railroad Commissioners of Massachusetts, just published In this report statements are given of freights and fares charged on the railways of Massachusetts On the Connecticut River Railroad freights for distances more than 15 and less than 30 miles are as follows Per ton per mile first class 10 7 cents, second class, 8 5 cents third class, 7 8 cents, fourth class, 7 1 cents. For distances more than 30 and less than 50 miles, first class, 8 4 cents, second class, 7 2 cents, third class, 5 6 cents fourth class, 4 8 cents Uniform rates for passenger fares are 3 75 cents per mile On the Boston and Providence Railroad first class freight is 6 to 8 cents per ton per mile second class 5 cents Passenger rates 3 3 cents per mile Other railroads in Massachusetts charge about the same rates

Fare from Portland to Salem on the Oregon and California Railroad is $2 75 cents, distance 52 miles, rate per mile, 5 3 cents From Portland to Albany the fare is $4 distance 78 miles, rate per mile 5 12 cents Freight (first class) between Portland and Salem is $5 per ton, or 9 6 cents per ton per mile on wheat and flour $3 60 or 7 cents per ton per mile Between Portland and Albany freight first class) is $7 per ton or 9 cents per ton per mile on wheat and flour $4 60 per ton or 6 cents per ton per mile

We give these comparisons in order that the people of Oregon may obtain thereby a better and more accurate knowledge of a subject which of late has been considerably discussed When difference of circumstances is taken into account railroad charges here compared with those in Massachusetts will not appear other than fair and moderate The railways of Massachusetts have long been in operation and have an immense traffic They traverse a country the most populous in the Union The railroads of Oregon are in process of construction the traffic is light and population is sparse and limited Taking these things into consideration and comparing the figures we have presented the people of Oregon will be able to say whether freights and fares here are reasonable or not

The New Barometer — We have been handed a new style of barometer. The new [illegible] barometrical scale instead of marking the exact amount of pressure on an exposed surface of mercury is designed to show the effects of alcoholic pressure on the mind. In other words it indicates the degrees of sobriety to which the immortal faculty of man is susceptible ere it is overcome with the stimulant and sinks down gloriously drunk. The scale is divided into 25 degrees thereby showing that no man with an ordinary alcoholic capacity can punish but a number of drunks before he reaches in triumph the top round of the ladder. First the [illegible] commences three degrees below 0 when the inner man is supposed to be exempt from the presence of the villainous compound. In [illegible] of the [illegible] then Dry as a chip next a drop. Devilish dry. He who has reached zero and is sober still one degree. All right two. Has had a smile three. Just comfortable four. "Balmy" five. Has had a drop six. At peace with mankind seven. Sprung eight. Can't see a hole in the ladder nine. Mysteriously light ten. Disguised in liquor eleven. "Tight" twelve. Slightly inebriated thirteen. "Half gone" fourteen. Sober within but drunk without fifteen. Fresh sixteen. In liquor seventeen. Worse for liquor eighteen. "Can lay on the ground without holding" nineteen. Boozey in earnest twenty. Big drunk twenty one. Drunk as a fiddler twenty-two. Drunk as an Alderman twenty three. "Speechless drunk" twenty four. Blind drunk twenty five. Mortally inebriated. Here the curtain falls with the victim who awakes from his dreams of extacy and finds himself looking out through iron rods for panes of glass. This new bar-ometer recommends itself to those who may wish to drink according to a graduated scale. We learn that its popularity is on the increase.

"Bilking" Again — Readers have not forgotten the case of a certain boy who traveled through this State last fall and was subject to sudden fainting fits. He represented himself as a victim of the Chicago fire and pretended to be seeking some relatives who resided somewhere in Washington Territory. Walking about the streets, he would apparently sink away in a fit. When he recovered, a thing which he never failed to do, he would tell the bystanders a long pitiful story about his difficulties not forgetting to state that he was destitute. He thus managed to wring in on the sympathy and confidence of [illegible], and realized sufficient funds by his [illegible] to live and travel. Months ago he left here, after the public had learned his "fainting trick" and story and nothing more was heard of him. But like a worthless penny he is cheating some other community. A Nevada exchange speaks as follows of, no doubt the same itinerant rogue: "A boy fifteen years of age a stranger in a strange land while walking down the street [illegible] evening, fell prostrate in front of the [illegible] in a fit. He was picked up by some [illegible] and carried into the Traveler's Home hotel, where he soon recovered. He had worked his way here from Oregon, where he had been with a circus company and was endeavoring to get back to Philadelphia, where his parents reside. The bystanders raised some money for the [illegible] and sent him on his journey."

Praise Meeting — A Praise Meeting will be held at the First Congregational Church on next Sunday evening at 7 30 o'clock. Order of exercises as follows:

1. Voluntary—Orchestra. Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messiah"
2. Chorus—"The Morning Light is Breaking."
3. Prayer
4. [illegible] "Marching On"
5. Chorus—"If I were a Sunbeam"
6. Chorus—"My Sabbath Song"
7. Congregational Chorus—"Rock of Ages"
8. Orchestra—"Singing unto God" from "Mass in B flat"
9. Chorus—"Joyful Evermore"
10. Chorus—"Go and tell Jesus"
11. Patriotic Chorus—"My Country 'tis of Thee"
12. [illegible] Rev Dr Atkinson
13. [illegible] "The Lord of Promise"
14. [illegible]
15. [illegible]—Voluntary "Glory be to God in the Highest," Pergolesi.
16. [illegible] and Benediction

[illegible] Trapper — Chris Collenburg an old and well known professional musician of this city, returned on last Tuesday evening from down the river with a small boat load of peltries. Chris some time ago concluded to abandon his [illegible] and engage in a more lucrative avocation. Having a natural inclination for wild romantic sports he purchased a boat rigged her out, and started down the river on a foraging expedition against all fur bearing animals which should cross his chosen path. During the past winter he has been engaged in trapping along the [illegible] and Cowlitz rivers, with fine success. He was [illegible] by another trapper of extensive [illegible], and obtained a boat load before the [illegible] season closed. His stock consists of [illegible], mink, beaver, coon and musk rat furs. As there is an active demand for these peltries in this market, Chris will be apt to reap a golden harvest as the fruit of his winter's labor and privations. When the proper season arrives he contemplates returning to the haunts of these [illegible].

A Mistake by Somebody — On Wednesday evening Mr J B Kellogg of this city called at the drug store of Dr Chapman to get some drugs which had been prescribed to be mixed with sarsaparilla and given to Mrs Kellogg for a bronchial [illegible] from which she has been suffering for some time. Procuring as he thought the required articles, Mr Kellogg returned home and mixing the drugs with the sarsaparilla he administered to his wife two teaspoonsful. In a few moments she was taken violently ill and a physician who was called pronounced it as his belief that she was poisoned. Antidotes were administered and she was partially relieved. We are [illegible] that the druggist's clerk gave Mr Kellogg the precise articles called for which if true, leads us under the circumstances to conclude there was either a mistake in the prescription or the manner of compounding it.

Important — The freight train of the O & C R R Co yesterday consisted of twenty cars with freight as follows: six car loads flour, six car loads live stock, one car load dried apples and seven cars assorted produce.

Drill — Columbian Engine Co No 3 will have a street drill this evening.

Keep the Gate Shut — An English farmer was one day at work in his fields when he saw a party of huntsmen riding about his farm. He had one field that he was specially anxious they should not ride over, as the crop was in a condition to be badly injured by the tramp of horses. So he dispatched one of his workmen to this field telling him to shut the gate and then keep watch over it and on no account to suffer it to be opened. The boy went as he was bidden but was scarcely at his post before the hunters came up peremptorily ordering the gate to be opened. This the boy declined to do stating the orders he had received and his determination not to disobey them. Threats and bribes were offered alike in vain; one after another coming forward as spokesman but all with the same result: the boy remained immovable in the determination not to open the gate. After a while one of noble presence came up and said in commanding tones: "My boy do you know me? I am the Duke of Wellington, one not accustomed to be disobeyed and I command you to open that gate that I and my friends may pass through." The boy lifted his cap and stood uncovered before the man whom England delighted to honor, then answered firmly: "I am sure the Duke of Wellington would not wish me to disobey orders. I must keep the gate shut nor suffer any one to pass but with my master's express permission." Greatly pleased the sturdy warrior lifted his own hat and said: "I honor the man or boy who can be neither bribed nor frightened into doing wrong. With an army of such soldiers I could conquer not only the French but the world." And handing the boy a glittering sovereign the old Duke put spurs to his horse and galloped away, while the boy ran off to his work shouting at the top of his voice "Hurrah, hurrah! I've done what Napoleon couldn't do—I've kept out the Duke of Wellington." — Christian Weekly.

What it Costs to Possess a Rhinoceros — A rhinoceros was lately added to a menagerie in [illegible] Cincinnati. It was imported direct from Sumatra. The price paid for the animal was $10 000 in gold on board of the vessel, the purchaser assuming all risks of landing and transportation. Taking twelve per cent as the average value of gold it would bring the cost of the animal to $11 200 in New York. Add to this the cost of transportation [illegible] to Cincinnati say $150 and the total cost of the animal would be $11,350. This rhinoceros is the only one of the kind ever imported to America. It is called by the Malays the Badak Tapa or Reclose Rhinoceros. So called because he is not gregarious, like his African congeners but is generally found alone. It is also sometimes termed the [illegible] from the fact of its wallowing in marshy places and [illegible] the [illegible] and painful bites.

The Temple of Diana at Ephesus

[illegible] (Jan. 27th) Correspondence of London Times

Most people have heard of those famous Seven Sleepers of Ephesus who taking refuge from the persecutions of Diocletian at the close of the third century fell asleep there and woke up two centuries afterward, to find a new world and a Christian empire Scarcely less romantic have been the fortunes of the famous temple of Diana of Ephesus one of the seven wonders of the ancient world Destroyed by an earthquake and plundered by the Goths in the third century of the Christian era it served as a quarry for the architects of the Byzantine city built at Ephesus, probably in the time of Justinian till, the appetite for plunder being exhausted, the remnant of its ruins was allowed to sit up silently under the slow but sure action of alluvial deposit Thus the very site of the world famous temple was obliterated, till British enterprise, piercing through twenty two feet of alluvial deposit, came suddenly on the marble pavement still strewed with broken columns, capitals and fragments of sculpture This discovery—one of the happiest efforts of archeology in our time—is due to the persevering energy and sagacity of Mr Wood who having searched for the site of the temple since 1863 first at his own expense and subsequently with funds supplied by the Trustees of the British Museum has been rewarded after long years of toil by the discovery of the site, which was finally ascertained about this time last year During the last twelve months a large area of the temple has been cleared to the pavement, and various architectural marbles have been found more or less mutilated, lying as they had been left by the barbarous despoilers in Byzantine times The diameter of these columns of the temple being six feet the scale of the architecture is of course colossal, exceeding it is believed in proportions the celebrated temple of Jupiter Olympus at Athens the temple at Branchidæ, and all other extant examples of Greek architecture

The great weight of the marbles [illegible] rendered it necessary for Mr Wood to apply for naval aid which was supplied by the British Government with that alacrity which has distinguished the admiralty in the history of our recent archæological expeditions and which can alone insure the complete success of such arduous enterprises Her Majesty s ship Caledonia, a grand old iron clad three decker was at once sent to Mr Wood s assistance and has been engaged since the beginning of this month at Ephesus and Smyrna in hauling, packing and shipping the marbles of the temple selected by Mr Wood for the British Museum I have been favored with a sight of these huge masses before they were shipped The largest weighing upwards of eleven tons is part of a drum of one of the cælatæ columnæ mentioned by Pliny [illegible] columns with figures sculptured on them of which the temple had thirty six [illegible] bold striking innovation in Greek architecture there exists it is believed no other example except at Ephesus The relief on this drum appears to represent an assemblage of deities of whom the only one who can be positively identified is Mercury the rest being draped female figures On a stone from a pilaster corresponding in dimensions to the sculptured drum is a relief representing Hercules struggling with a draped female figure and on another fragment of the drum are the lower halves of some seated and standing female figures. This sculpture is very bold and effective as to decoration, but wants the ineffable charm and freshness of the frieze of the Parthenon, while in masterly vigor of execution and dramatic force it falls far short of the frieze of the Mausoleum It is careless and inexact in execution and has the characteristics which we might expect to find in the Greek sculptures of the Macedonian period when work was [illegible]
